Historic Steel Construction Manuals - AISC Home

The American Institute of Steel Construction (AISC) was created in 1921, and the first edition of its iconic design standard, the Specification for Structural Steel Buildings was issued in 1923. This first edition was a modest 13 pages long, but it was a powerful instrument in unifying structural steel design practice in the United States. Since then, the document has been greatly expanded to include new research and practice, and it has been
