You basically need two things to practice jazz: songs to work on and an ukulele chord reference to play them. Songs. The best source for jazz songs I've found is the iReal Pro app available for Apple and Android ($14-20). It's a song chart app that lays out tunes just by chord changes - similar to what I wrote out above.

3. “Riptide” – Vance Joy has a great little tune called “Riptide”, which works wonderfully well on the ukulele. This romantic song also segues nicely into the old Robert Palmer tune, “Riptide”, which I suggest you learn as well. 4. Counting Stars – One Republic has a song that sounds great with the ukulele and slowed down a bit ...

So I played around a little bit with the song, and used this cool tuning app to kind of verify the chords. This song is actually super easy up until the bridge. The first chords are going to be F, G, Am, G, in first position as you can hear in the intro. It sounds like the strum is simply up, down, up, down, etc starting on an up strum.
